INTRODUCING OUR 2019/2020 HEAD GIRL, HEAD BOY AND THEIR DEPUTIES

Introducing our Head Girl, Ruby Drake and our Head Boy, Sam Williams, who will lead for the academic year 2019/2020, along with their deputies Caitlin, Hannah & Olivia, James, Rewan & Elliott. We are going to be in very safe hands with this superb bunch of students!

Thank you HB Isaac and HG Matilda, their deputies, and all the outgoing students leaders who have done such an excellent job of inspiring us by helping at school events, representing the school at external events, public speaking, meeting our local MP, fundraising and generally being awesome, kind and helpful over the last 12 months! Have a wonderful extra long summer break, you've earned it!

RLS FRENCH EXCHANGE— NAVARRENX

*Report and photographs by Dan
Ward - Year 9*

Before May half term 15 RLS students travelled to Navarrenx in southern France to spend a week with our French correspondents. The Navarrenx students had visited us in December 2018 on the first leg of the exchange and we had shown them the sights of Cornwall. After a 12 hour journey we arrived at college des RempArts where we met the Headteacher, our correspondents and their parents. It was great to see our French friends again. The Headteacher announced that he expected us to speak French at all times as he didn't speak a word of English!

We then went to the family homes of our exchange students for the weekend. Although it all felt a bit strange initially, by the end of the first day I felt very comfortable around Estaban's family and there was lots of fresh bread which tasted much better than English bread.

Over the weekend some students visited the Lindt chocolate factory, but we stayed in the village and played lots of ping pong and visited Tom and his exchange partner who were just down the road. On Monday we went back to le college des Remparts where we had 2 lessons, mine were geography and English. In geography we learnt the lifecycle of a t-shirt in French, in English we had a trivia quiz and I won. On Tuesday we visited the aquarium in Biarritz, we took lots of photos and watched local people going about their business. After that we had free time, I bought a Kit Kat flavoured ice cream and visited a librairie and Tom starred in a local YouTuber's video. With Tom and his correspondent we went on a tour du velo (cycling tour) which went past the English teacher's house. On Wednesday we went back to school for a French grammar lesson and the teacher taught us about Napoleon 3rd and how Biarritz was used by his armies. We also had a Spanish lesson but I didn't understand much! After school we went into Navarrenx to visit the market stall, I bought myself a baguette. School finished at 12:35 as French students have Wednesday afternoons off.

On Thursday, during the school day we went to Pau, where we caught a cable car up to King Henry 4th's house and saw an impressive well. We walked through the town with free time to explore. I bought really sour sweets and fed them to Ms Hargrave's husband. He didn't like them.

Then we went bowling and I came second.

On Friday we left the school to travel back to England. At the airport one of our teachers had her cheese confiscated as it was soft cheese and only hard cheese is permitted. The flight was delayed for 10 minutes but the bus was also delayed in England so we eventually got home at around 10pm.

I had a great time visiting my French family and would recommend this trip to any students who are thinking about participating in the future.

Pyjarama—SHARING OUR FAVOURITE BEDTIME STORIES!

Year 7 thoroughly enjoyed Pyjarama last Friday. Teachers from all curriculum areas were invited to start lessons by sharing their favourite bedtime story, English lessons featured games of 'story consequences' and writing 'mini sagas' (complete stories in exactly 50 words).

Pyjarama lunchtime today saw Year 7 students trying to guess staff from the clues of a childhood photo and a paragraph about their first favourite book. This gave us a few giggles and our top tip for guessing is to look at the eyes! There was a children's story quiz at tutor time.

Thank you to Miss Thomas for organising all of the Pyjarama activities and thank you to Year 7 for getting involved!

Thank you to everyone who came into school in pyjamas or onesies and donated £1 to The Book Trust.

SALTER'S CHEMISTRY FESTIVAL

On the 4th June the science department took four Year 8 students to Truro College to compete in the Salters' Chemistry Festival.

The students started the day with the Salters' Challenge. Aderyn, Gerran, Kirstin and Oliver worked in two pairs to identify a missing metal by process of elimination. They reacted metals with different types of acid, and used chromatography to work out the identity of the thief. The second challenge was The College Challenge. The students needed to raise and lower the temperature of two solutions using their knowledge of exothermic and endothermic reactions. They were judged on technique, precision, report writing and team co-operation.

The Richard Lander students were awarded 3rd Prize in The College Challenge. They won a selection of goodies to take home, a certificate, and a molymod kit to make model molecules for the science department.

The day ended with a Chemical Magic Demonstration in the lecture theatre. Well done to this year's team!

RLS SAFEGUARDING UPDATE

When nudes get shared around

You've probably heard about people sending 'nudes', 'pics' or 'n4n' (nudes for nudes). These are naked or partly-naked photos or videos. Young people might send nude images to:

- A boyfriend/girlfriend
- A best friend (as a joke)
- Someone they like or think is g

ThinkUKnow offers excellent advice for both parents and students on internet safety. This month they are running a campaign to raise awareness of nude selfies. For some myth-busting information on nude selfies please click here

If, as a parent, you are asking any of these 7 questions:

1. What is a nude selfie?
2. Are all young people taking nude selfies?
3. Why would my child share a nude selfie?
4. How do I even begin to talk to my child about this?
5. When should I be worried?
6. My child has shared a nude - where can I get help?
7. It is illegal to send nude selfies - will my child get in trouble?

Bassoon Taster Workshop

Saturday 29 June

Truro High School for Girls

The bassoon is a BRILLIANT instrument – but there are not many players.

We are hoping to find some young people who already have some musical experience who would be able to make rapid progress.

This workshop is for young people who already play a musical instrument but would like to try the bassoon. At the workshop you will:

- Find out more about the bassoon, including a short performance by Sally, the professional tutor
- Learn some basic technique and get plenty of hands on experience with the instrument
- Learn a simple piece for bassoon ensemble and perform it at the end of the session

The workshop is aimed at young people who are of at least Grade 5 standard on another instrument and who are in years 7 to 11. The stretch on the bassoon is quite big – you need to be able to reach an octave on the piano to be able to cover the tone holes effectively.

There is no charge for the workshop and instruments will be provided.

Those attending the workshop who would like to continue learning will be offered a trial term free of charge.

Sally is a professional bassoonist and teacher, playing with orchestras across the south of England. She is a regular chamber music player and has played with the Birmingham Symphony Orchestra and the Liverpool Philharmonic Orchestra. She is principal bassoon with the Bristol Ensemble.

To book your place please contact: Patrick Bailey at cmeh@cornwall.gov.uk
